Takes Personal Charge of Search for Clara Josephine Coffin Who Mysteriously Disappeared from Her Home.

YOUNG WOMAN MAY HAVE GONE TO CALIFORNIA

For Some Time She Has Been Making Inquiries About Rates and Routes to Los Angeles Where Her Grandmother Lives

count of the disappearance of her seventeen-year-old daughter, Clara Jo-sephine, Mrs. Edward W. Coffin, of Busnett street, East Orange, is traveling from station along the line of the Delaware & Lackawanna road and making a personal four of inquiry of information about the lost girl. The girl's itther, one of the prominent men in the Standard Oil Company, is at his home eagerly waiting for a message by telephone or telegraph that will bring bim some news of the girl's where-It was learned to-day that when she eft her home Miss Coffin took with her a tan cloth jacket, in the pocket of which she had a card sent her by Mrs. M. A. Gillis, of Wallace street, Phila-delphia. Mrs. Gillis is the girl's aunt and has lived in Philadelphia for years. One theory is that the girl may have gone to Parladelphia. The police of that city are now searching every noon and corner to see if any trace of her can be found there.

For a short time previous to her disappearance the girl had inquired of the agent of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road in Orange what the rates were to California. She wanted him to find out all about the fares, sleeper conditions and connections between Orange and Los Angeles, where her grandmother, Mrs. Clara Coffin, lives. It is feared that Miss Coffin might have got enough money together out of her savings and gone to some distant point along the road and there purchased a ticket for the coast. It is Mrs. Coffin's mission to-day to find out if this is true.

In Newark the distracted mother is making the rounds of the railroad companies to find out if they had sold a ticket to her daughter to any distant point. She does not think the girl committed suicide but has gone away to a

Miss Coffin had been studying hard at the High School for some time prior to her disappearance. She was rather rewards in which both she and her brother were to profit. Visited Girl Friends. "She spent some time in the afternoon with her girl friends, Dorothy Duff. Jes-sie Houston and Margaret Webster, and in the evening announced that she was going around the corner to visit Miss Houston for half an hour. We thought nothing of it until she did not return by 10 o'clock, and then I went around to the Houstons to get her. She had not been there. We nave had no trace of her since then."

The girl is described as being seventeen years of age, of medium height, with gray eyes, brown hair, worn in a braid, and light complexion. She wore a gray skirt, white waist, gray hat, trimmed with velvet and tan and white pompons. She is also believed to have taken a gray maskintosh.
